KNOW IT WELL

Familiar Features Well Known to
Hundreds of Norway Citizens.

A familiar burden in many a home,
The burden of a "bad back."

A lame, a weak or an aching back
Often tells you of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Here is good testimony to prove it.
L. E. Monk, mechanic, Pleasant St.,

South Paris, Me., says: "I suffered nearly every day from a lame back. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I knew that my kidneys needed attention. Someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. They did me a great deal of good and two or three boxes made me well."

Three years later, Mr. Monk said:
"My kidneys have remained sound and healthy since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

Reliable Remedy
Restores Kidneys
For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.
It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. Dr. Kilmer used it for years in his private practice. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work man intended they should do. Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it will help you. No other remedy can successfully take its place. Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.
However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention the Norway Weekly Oxford Co. Advertiser. 15-16

THE OLD POORHOUSE.

There at the junction where the two roads meet,
There bloom the lilacs, near the quiet street,
As the old oaken door shut full to the hilt,
Rose from the well in the sunset dim;
At midnight hour or early morn, when the sun
In the morning, the lilacs bloom bright and gay—
Stands the old poorhouse as one rides down
To the white village of old Paris town.

Tall and so stately in its sad decay,
Like an old man moaning as years glide away,
Mourning the days of his youth and its glow,
Now but a relic of the long long ago.

The heart of the poor, the maimed and the blind,
The child and the mother, the man of feeble mind,
On the white page of memory tears down fall,
As I take up my pen and your history recall.

Sweet Ruminant Walcott, what a picture of pain!
What calm resignation; none heard her complain!
"Tis the will of my Lord," we have oft heard her say,
"I bow to that will. His way is my way."

She once was a teacher, ere sickness came down,
And poverty bore her, at last, to the town;
In look and in manner, in each chosen word,
One saw there the lady and sympathy was stirred.

There in the midst of that babel and din
From the sane and insane, from without and within,
Sat Emmeline Walcott, her faith soaring o'er,
With spirit as sweet as an angel's before.

When she loved her loved, I can never forget,
She, a pale, drooping lily; I see her there yet,
Her room was the scene of her pain and her tears,
What calm resignation; none heard her complain!

In the old poorhouse for long weary years,
As there were many that I might recall,
But she was the one, so true and so kind,
Here I must refrain from more, save one.

CASCO

Charles E. Brann.

Charles E. Brann of Casco died at his home in Shadagee, Sunday morning, April 9, at one o'clock, at the age of 69 years, 8 months and 12 days, after a prolonged illness of one year.

The funeral was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Meserve of Shadagee, Casco, on Tuesday, April 11, at 10 o'clock, the Rev. Irving Kemp of Casco Village performing the ceremony, and the burial took place at Evergreen Cemetery, Piquette Corner, Alfred Hall officiating.

Mr. Brann was born in Casco, Maine, on May 1, 1847, his parents being of English and Scotch descent, his father being a shipwright working for a private ship-building corporation.

From Canada he came to Newry where he lived for 10 years; to Mayberry Hill; to Oxbow and then to Casco for eight years, making him a resident of Maine for 33 years. Mr. Brann's residence in Casco was marked by a hard, conscientious life, having been employed by S. O. Hancock in his lumbering at Harris Hill.

Casco people will miss his familiar figure as he passed through and about the village, and sympathize with his daughter and son who were so attentive to him during his sickness.

He was conscious to the last, having been obliged to sit up in a chair where he was resting, holding his son's hand, when he died.

His wife died last fall in Milwaukee, Wis., at the house of his daughter, Mrs. Meserve. He has no brothers or sisters, being the only child, but leaves behind him two daughters and one son, Mrs. Jessie Meserve of Casco, Mrs. Metcalf of Milwaukee, Wis., Bert Brann of Kennebago, and four grandchildren, three girls and one boy.

It is thought it was very seriously kicked.

The roads are in very bad condition on account of the deep mud.

The committee on dinner was composed of Mrs. Hunting, Mrs. Lovejoy, Mrs. Grace Smith, Mrs. Thomas, with many assistants. A bountiful dinner of baked beans was served. Danced in the evening.

Herbert Mayberry, who submitted to a surgical operation at St. Marie Hospital last Tuesday, is doing finely.

Mrs. Herbert Mayberry is visiting her sister in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bumpus, who have occupied the Morey cottage since the fire, will move into the house with Richard Tyner. Alterations are being made. They will live separately.

Mrs. George Tyner hatched 86 chicks from her incubator which holds 120 eggs.

DANGERS OF DRAFT
Drafts feel best when we are hot and perspiring, just when they are most dangerous and the result is Neuralgia, Stiff Neck, Sore Muscles or sometimes a attack of Rheumatism. In such cases apply Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the sore and painful part. The blood flows freely and in a short time the stiffness and pain leave. Those suffering from Neuralgia or Neuritis should apply Sloan's Liniment to the affected part. The agonizing pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth and quiet rest and sleep is possible. Good for Neuritis too. Price 25c. at your Druggist.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the tonic system responds to its refreshing force. It is free from alcohol.

NEW OATH.

The law recently enacted by Congress in the course of the "preparedness" program, provides that State Militias shall take, in addition to its regular oath, another which pledges them to uphold and defend the constitution of the United States and obey the President.

Under this law all the militia companies of the State, to be ordered into Mexico, or anywhere else where trouble may come up, is liable.

DON'T DO IT.

If you have a home and are out of debt, don't fret and worry yourself and your good wife into the grave for the sake of making money. You have but one life to live and it is brief at best. Take a little comfort as you go day by day, and try to do a little good to others.

A morbid, insatiable desire to possess the earth, to grab everything in sight, is at the foundation of more misery than almost any other one thing.

Service and Sheep's Legs.

You can't make any old kind treatment of customers successful by calling it "service." Abraham Lincoln once asked an oratorical clergyman who was criticizing him:

"If you call a sheep's tail a leg, how many legs will it have?"

The orator replied up his eloquence.

"Five!" he answered hotly, exasperated at such an interruption.

"No, four," corrected Mr. Lincoln.

"Calling the tail a leg won't make it one."

FROM MAINE MAPLE TREES.Maple Filling.

Two and one-fourth cupfuls maple-sugar, one-fourth cupful butter, one-half cupful sweet milk, one teaspoonful vanilla.

Cook all ingredients together, as for frosting. Beat as it cools, and flavor. Have cake cold when filling is put on.

Maple-Marshmallow Frosting.
One cupful maple-sugar, one-half cupful boiling water, whites of two eggs, one-half pound marshmallows, two tablespoonfuls boiling-water, one-half teaspoonful vanilla.

Cook sugar and water without stirring, until sirup threads when dropped from spoon. Pour sirup in a fine stream onto whites of eggs beaten until foamy, beating constantly meanwhile. Set sauce on range for a moment and continue beating until egg is cooked, then add marshmallows, cut in small pieces and melted with the two tablespoonfuls boiling water. Add vanilla, set over cold water, and beat occasionally until cool enough to spread.

Cream Maple-Sugar Frosting.
Two cupfuls soft maple-sugar, one cupful cream.

Break sugar into small pieces, put in saucepan with cream, and stir occasionally until sugar is dissolved. Boil with stirring until a soft ball can be formed with the fingers when mixture is tried in cold water. Beat until of the right consistency to spread.

Maple-Sugar in the Daily Meals.
Look up the actual facts and you will find that most of our so-called "maple-syrup" is practically the same as regards purity and wholesomeness, but cane-sugar is not maple-sugar and should not be labeled as such. "Maple-sugar" from the cane is from 30 cents to 45 cents a quarter cheaper than maple-syrup.

If you can buy maple-syrup at a reasonable price in its season, do so, and bottle it yourself. To make a success of this the syrup must be bottled while hot, in air-tight bottles—preferably in pint size, for it very soon loses its flavor when left open. Following are some particularly good recipes for the use of maple-sugar and syrup.

Lunch Cakes.
One cupful maple-syrup, one-fourth cupful butter, three-fourths cupful sweet milk, one egg, two cupfuls flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, nuts. Cream butter and sugar, add beaten egg, milk and flour sifted with baking powder. Bake in well-buttered muffin tins, in a quick oven. If nuts are used, add lastly.

Maple Cookies.
One cupful maple-syrup, one-half cupful of white sugar, white of one egg. Boil syrup and sugar until mixture will grain; stir until nearly cold, then pour on stiffly beaten white of egg.

One cupful maple-syrup, three tablespoonfuls butter, one egg, one cupful sour cream, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful soda, flour, maple-sugar.

Cream butter and sugar, add well beaten egg, and cream. Sift soda and salt with a little flour, then add to mixture enough more flour to make of right consistency to drop from spoon. Care should be taken not to get the mixture too stiff.

Grate maple-sugar on top of each cookie and bake in moderate oven eight minutes. Cookies should be kept in an air-tight receptacle.

Maple Bread Cake.
One and one-fourth cupfuls maple-syrup, one-half cupful butter, one-half cupful sweet milk, six tablespoonfuls corn-starch, one and one-half cupfuls flour, one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls vanilla. Whites of four eggs.

Cream butter and sugar; sift corn-starch and flour several times, and add beaten egg, and cream. Sift soda and salt with a little flour, then add to mixture enough more flour to make of right consistency to drop from spoon. Care should be taken not to get the mixture too stiff.

BILLY SUNDAY AND THE MODERN WOMEN.

A recent sermon of Billy Sunday's was from the text, "Is it Well With Thee; Is it Well With Thy Husband; Is it Well With Thy Child." Sunday said that the devil and women can ruin the world and Jesus and women can save the world. "I believe," said Billy, "that there is something unfinished in the makeup of a girl who lacks religion. The average girl of today no longer looks forward to motherhood as the crowning glory of womanhood."

"She is turning her home into a gambling shop and a beer and champagne drinking joint, and her society is made up of poker-players, beer-drinkers, grass widowers, jilted jades and slander mongers—that mixture comprises the society of the average girl of today. She is becoming a matinee gagger and a fudge eater."

"I wish I could make a girl who flirts see herself as others see her. If you make eyes at a man on the street he will pay you back. It doesn't mean that you are pretty. It means that if you don't care any more for yourself than that, why should he? The average man will take a girl at her personal estimate of herself."

"Why don't you women start a dress reform—for the women, for the women and by the women. I am not a crank. I don't want you to dress like my mother did, with hoops sticking out, but I want you to cover yourselves up when you go out on the streets. Why, a man with red blood in his veins can't look at half the women on the streets now and not have impure thoughts."

"Whatever you do, girls, don't transfer the love that God gave you, of being loved by God, to a man, right in their place, but their place is out in the kennel."

GETTING THE BUSINESS OF NEW PEOPLE.

One reason why the advertising game is such a leading factor in modern business is that population is so constantly changing.

Years ago people used to settle down in one place and live there all their lives. Having grown up in a place, they knew all the merchants. They had some idea as to who was enterprising and alert and who was slow and indifferent. Advertising was useful then, but not so wholly necessary now. But many merchants are still trying to do business as if these conditions still existed.

Nowadays the population of most towns is very fluctuating. If a store is satisfied merely to keep its old customers, it finds that a certain proportion die off each year. A portion have moved elsewhere. Meanwhile a constant influx of new people come in. It is a common remark, even in small places, that the town is full of new faces.

When a new family comes in, they immediately want to know where to trade. They know nothing of the history or reputation of the merchants. The first thing they do is to buy a newspaper and find out what stores are advertising. Usually they open up accounts with merchants whose notices they have read.

A man may have done business for a lifetime in his old location, all of it honorable trade. He may have given good value all these years, and still have an established circle of patronage. The newcomer knows nothing of all this. Indeed he is a little suspicious of old established firms, knowing that sometimes they live on old established reputations.

Business relations made with newcomers through advertising realizes the necessity of making good promises he puts into print. He gets the cream of the new trade, and wins the friendship of the new people, who to less enterprising merchants are wholly strangers.

MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY.

In a rural school a few days ago the teacher—a young man just out of normal school—conducted the service. The pupils, to tell what each believed to be the greatest day in the year. The answers were piped up promptly, "Washington's Birthday," "Christmas," "The Fourth," "Thanksgiving," and so on.

"But I'm afraid you're all wrong," said the teacher. "The greatest day of all days in the year is mother's birthday."

We're sorry we haven't a chance here to tell just how much we think of that young man. Suffice it to say that such teachers are the crying need not of our rural schools, but of our higher institutions of the city. For if those youngsters learn no more than what mother really means they will not have trudged miles to the little frame schoolhouse for naught.

We fear we are all pupils more or less when it comes to learning our duty, and we are all pupils more or less when we are separated from her by land or sea we can always feel her influence, and we can always find that tie of love that links us ever to her blessed soul. Wouldn't it be a better world if we all tried to make mother's birthday the greatest of all days? Let's try it.

NORTH LOVELL.

Mrs. Sophia K. McAllister passed away at her home here April 5. She suffered severely, but was very patient and cheerful, making no complaint, even when the pain was hardest. She received the tenderest care from her daughters and every thing was done for her recovery, but was of no avail.

From this union was born eleven children, six of them survive her, two sons, A. J. of Bemis and Gorham of North Lovell, four daughters, Mrs. Cora Butters of East Stoneham, Mrs. Viola Stone, Lockes Mills, Mrs. Lottie Butters of Albany and Miss Butters of North Lovell, and twenty-five grandchildren. Place Eyes of Beans Down.
In planting any kind of beans, but more especially the Lima bean, it will pay to take a little more time and place the bean as the seed with the eye down, as the root is formed from the eye, and the bean pushed up through the soil to the light, where leaves and the vine appear to unfold from the bean.

It has been found that three to six days are frequently gained in using this method, and the plants are stronger, as they do not have to use any of their force in turning the bean over, or turning up to the light of day. Try the experiment and watch for yourself.

GENERAL NEAL DOW.

Our musters, attendance at which was obligatory upon all the enrolled militia, were little less than burlesque occasions or days for drunkenness, and much that was worse. Position in line was by no means confined to uniformed companies. There were on hand, to be sure, in all their finery, with much fuss and parade, their commanders resplendent in feathers and epaulettes and whatever else of glittering tinsel they could attach to their persons. But however creditable their appearance, it served only as a foil to the mass of the militia gathered from far and near in every conceivable garb, often purposely made to excite amusement and ridicule.

Gen. Dow says: "I recall a laughable incident in connection with one of these occasions. In the band, on the right of the column, was a little short-legged bass drummer, whose head and feet were visible respectively above and below his big drum, which, absolutely concealed from those in front the rest of his person. In those days hogs ran as freely through the streets as dogs do now, and were more numerous. One of these animals, frightened by something, running from one side of the street to the other, dashed between the legs of the little drummer, and taking him off his feet, carried him, drum and all, until he threw him off at some distance in advance of the procession.

This incident was hardly more ridiculous than some of the evolutions performed in good faith at these musters, which did nothing to fit those who participated in them for soldiers, but much to disqualify many for good citizenship. They were often the occasion of most disgraceful exhibitions of drunkenness. When not more than twelve years of age, I pulled a boy, not older than myself, to the sidewalk from the street where he had fallen, drunk with liquor obtained from one of the sutler's tents, at that time invariably surrounding muster-fields. At another muster, to my intense horror and disgust, I was fallen on and held down by a drunken man. The feeling then engendered was ever after associated in my mind with those gala-days of the old time militia.

Every old volunteer fireman in the country can see by that extract that the spirit which filled the craft had possessed him of me—quite willing, if there must be a fire to have it occur when and where one could attend it.

Gen. Dow says that while Captain of the Deluge Engine Company, an incident occurred of some local import that may be of interest here, and serve to further illustrate the general lack of reliance upon the "watch" of the day. In the heat of the earlier anti-slavery excitement, a meeting had been announced to be held in the Friends' Church, to be addressed by some anti-slavery speakers from Massachusetts, and it became known that an attempt would be made to mob it. The mayor asked me to be present and to assist in preserving order, the watch being entirely inadequate to cope with the impending emergency.

I immediately suggested a plan through which I could guarantee the protection of the meeting and obtained his approval. I sent messengers to summon to the engine house at an early hour some thirty or forty of the members of my engine company, upon whose pluck, discretion and loyalty to myself I could fully rely. At the hour appointed, I met them there, and briefly stated my intention to prevent a crowd of roughs from interfering with the contemplated anti-slavery meeting. They decided to a man to sustain me, and I led them quietly to the meeting-house, and into the aisle, where we arrived in good season, and formed in two lines, leaving a passage between so that everybody disposed could pass to take seats.

The house was soon crowded, the would-be rioters evidently mistaking some of my men for their sympathizers. I sat at the head of the "column" of firemen, near the speakers. Next to me two of my company whom I had selected for the head of the line—men of unusual physique, strength and agility, of undoubted pluck and determination. By this time half a dozen of the roughs had worked their way to the front, close to the speakers, ready to open the "fun" they were to enjoy.

The first speaker had not occupied the floor more than a minute before one of these "toughs" shouted, with an oath, "Don't tread on my toes!" "Take care of that fellow!" was my order. My two stout fire-leaders seized him by the collar, and he went down that aisle and out of the door like a projectile from a catapult. "Number Seven, do not hurt any man who behaves himself!" was the next order, and everything went off as quiet and orderly throughout the remainder of the meeting as at a religious gathering. At its close the company furnished a guard for the speakers to their respective residences, and what threatened to be a disgrace to the mayor and the good discipline and love of order of my old Deluge Engine Company.

Gen. Dow says: "At a dinner of one of the engine companies which as Chief Engineer I attended, the toastmaster, a member strong in my views on temperance, offered a toast to be drunk in cold water, 'for want,' he said, 'of anything more appropriate and acceptable to him who is to respond to it.' Holding his glass of water aloft, stentorian voice than by his towering figure (he was two or three inches over six feet in height) he turned to me and said: 'Mr. Chief, I ask you to respond to this toast: 'Brandy and water—water for the firemen.' Naturally there followed a loud and amid the vociferous cheering, largely ironical, a small minority, I dare say, sympathizers with my views, I rose to respond. I tried to keep the company in good nature that it might listen, as it did with respect when I improved the opportunity to enable me naturally to close with another toast as follows: 'Brandy and water—water extinguishes fire, and brandy extinguishes firemen.'

A formidable movement for my dismissal from the position, taking advantage of the fact that the city government was in the hands of the conservatives, while I was a Whig, petitions asking for my removal were prepared and posted for signature at all the hotels and liquor-shops in town. They were numerous and signed.

A day was appointed by the mayor and aldermen for a hearing. The instigators of the movement had engaged one of the ablest lawyers in town, a man of great native ability and brilliancy as an orator, but whose opportunities for usefulness were cut off by his untimely death. I was urged with being arbitrary and despotic, as being unsuited in the management of men and generally incompetent for my position. A number of names had been selected from among those in the department best known to differ with me in theory and practice as to the use of intoxicants, it having been taken for granted that they would testify against me. One put upon the stand was a jolly good fellow, the toast-master formerly referred to, who professed little sympathy for temperance. He was connected with a most respectable family, the influence of which was intended to be the developing reform movement. Because of this the liquor interests depended upon him as a valuable witness for its purpose.

With that particular manner assumed by some lawyer when they call an important witness, with a pose and an adjusting of the waistcoat, a smile and a benign look upon the audience, and an air seeming to say, "Now see what I am going to do," the counsel for the petitioners, after the preliminary questions and replies tending to show his witness qualified to testify as an expert, said: "Now Mr. Chief, state your opinion of the skill and ability of the Chief." The reply excited shouts of laughter because so unexpected by the counsel as to completely astonish him. It was in substance: "My opinion is that he knows how to handle men as well as any, and that we have no better fireman among us."

I digress here to relate another incident in which this witness surprised some of his associates. Years after the event recorded, when his appetite for liquor had so far increased that he was much under its control, he, with several others was called to testify in an early case under the Maine Law against a notorious liquor dealer whose regular customers they were supposed to be. The new law was regarded by many as an invasion of private rights, so outrageous, some said, that even reputable men pretended to believe that perjury when necessary to protect liquor dealers, was proper. Witness after witness who had been seen by officers going in and out of the store of the respondent testified that they had never bought, drunk or seen any liquors sold, given away or drunk there. Finally our toast-master was called. He admitted that he had bought and drunk it there, and had seen others do the same. The conviction of the liquor seller followed. The violator of the law afterwards complained to his witness of what he called his treachery, but the latter replied: "I have paid you for all the liquor I have bought in your shop, and made no promise, express or implied, to lie about it, or perjure myself on your account."

By a curious coincidence the lawyer who was prosecuting the charges against me before the board of aldermen was also called as a witness in this liquor case. He objected to answering the question asked by the county attorney on the ground, first, as he said, that it was an invasion of his personal constitutional rights; if he might be asked what he drank, he urged, he might also ask what he wore, ate, etc.; second, that he would not answer the question affirmatively, without exposing himself to ridicule, abuse, and loss of business; third, that if he should answer affirmatively, he would eliminate himself, as he regarded it a misdemeanor for one person to procure the violation of law by another. The position he took was argued pro and con by the counsel for the liquor dealer on the one side and the county attorney, the late Henry J. Swasey, of Standish, on the other. Finally the judge decided that the questions must be answered.

Gen. Dow says: "While I was mayor I attended a fire and saw a fireman so drunk, he could not climb a ladder. I ordered a policeman to take him to the police station, and I took his place myself. The chief was much surprised when he called his force from the roof to find that the mayor of the city was one of them.

FARMERS AND DUPELES.

"Oh, he's just a farmer out here in the country."

We stood on a street corner the other day and heard that remark passed by one of the "brilliant" young masculine striplings of our town as he "bummed" the "smokings" from a friend.

The farmer, to be sure, was just a farmer "out here in the country." He wore overalls and drove his wagon into town, but at home his automobile rested snugly in the garage. He owns one of the most valuable farms in this whole section of the State. His home life is ideal and his wife and children have everything they desire. His simple word is as good as his check, and his check would be honored for a sum that might stagger you.

He is a man, a real man, a man whom other men acknowledge to be a man among men, even if he is "just a farmer out here in the country."

But what of the stripling, what of the dupelet?

He is just one of that numerous class who never know everything and never do anything, who amount to nothing and are worth less. He is just a dupelet, and it is doubtful if he ever attains to the "dignity" of being a real dupe.

Yes, he is "just a farmer out here in the country," but he is our friend, he is everybody's friend, and time may prove him to be the "friend in need" of the poor, rapid, brainless dupelet.

We need a thousand more just like him—this man who is "just a farmer out here in the country," and whom we are proud to know as our friend.

Poor, deluded dupelet! May he never be worse!

MAINE ROADS.

Warnings have been issued by the Maine Automobile Association regarding the present condition of all highways throughout the State outside of city streets and improved roads of the so-called permanent type. At the present time the frost is coming out of the ground and automobilists are very likely to get mired and possibly to sustain serious damage to their machines on account of the bad road conditions. The majority of people undoubtedly are aware of this fact, but so anxious is the average motorist to get out in the spring that he takes a chance and in a majority of cases has to suffer the consequences. Reports received by the Touring Bureau of the Maine A. A. indicate that the majority of unpaved roads are now in very bad condition and should be avoided for the next two weeks at least.

The improved roads, built by the State Highway Department throughout Maine have come through the winter in excellent condition. Many of them have "heaved up" considerably, but the State's engineers who have now inspected these portions of them, report that these conditions are not serious and the spots will return to their normal shape after the frost gets out of the ground. What few bad breaks have resulted from the exceptionally severe winter can easily be repaired without great cost.

The Highway Commission is also making preparations on all of its State road work to begin operations just as soon as the frost comes out of the ground and conditions will permit.
